"On humanity and freedom" is a speech delivered by Charlie Chaplin in the film 'The Great Dictator' . He says "We want to live by each other's happiness - not by each other's misery. We don't want to hate and despise one another. In this world there is room for everyone. And the good earth is rich and can provide for everyone. The way of life can be free and beautiful, but we have lost the way".

He attempts a scathing attack on human beings by saying "Greed has poisoned men's souls, has barricaded the world with hate, has goose-stepped us into misery and bloodshed". The character reiterates that "Our knowledge has made us cynical. Our cleverness, hard and unkind. We think too much and feel too little. More than machinery we need humanity. More than cleverness we need kindness and gentleness. Without these qualities, life will be violent and all will be lost...."

He goes further to say that "the aero plane and the radio have brought us closer together. The very nature of these inventions cries out for the goodness in men - cries out for universal brotherhood - for the unity of us all". Even now his voice is reaching millions throughout the world - millions of despairing men, women, and little children - victims of a system that makes men torture and imprison innocent people.

Cinema is the most popular means of entertainment. Millions of people watch cinema everyday all over the world-not only for entertainment but also as a means to escape from the monotony, boredom, anxiety and troubles of life.

It is a restful, pleasurable and entertaining means of rewinding and relaxing after a long day's work. All the senses are captivated while viewing cinema and the next two and a half or three hours is spent in a wink. Moreover, it is that means of entertainment which every class and section of society can afford as per their convenience. Indian cinema has a charm, flavor and magic of its own. It not only appeals to the film-crazy Indian public but also enchants a large number of audiences all over the world. People who do not speak or understand Hindi, yet gain an ability to sing songs from Hindi films just by listening to it. An average Indian film is longer than film from other parts of the world, which are seasoned with love, hate, revenge, drama, tears, joys including songs and dances. A typical Indian film has it all-all the spice and variety of life condensed into it, transporting the audience on a magic carpet to a totally different world where everything and anything is possible.
